KENO ROLL WEDNESDAY EVENING

THE LADIES OF TONOPAH ARE MIGHTILY INTERESTED IN WEDNESDAY'S EVENT.

Tonopah ladies, not one whit behind their sisters in other cities, are much enamored of bridge whist. They sit about in their gorgeous gowns and chatter and gossip, and it is said, they even "bet a little bit." Just to make it interesting, "don't you know?" But "The Rambler" would not condemn them if they did, nor would he permit anyone else to do so, for

"In fact to speak in earnest, I believe it adds a charm, To spice the good a trifle With a little dust of harm."

At a recent bridge gathering the coming keno roll was discussed and each, vice versa and ad libitum. Their loyalty to bridge was manifest from the beginning—no game ever discovered afforded so much pleasure to them. But the ever present yearning for hazzard in the female breast was too strong and there were some insurgents in the band. If any of you of the sterner sex doubt that the fair ones like to gamble, kindly take a peek at your unworthy self and ask: "Why did she ever marry me?" Why, she just will take a chance.

So the discussion progressed about as follows: Said she would not look right nor left, if she thought there was a chance to be caught; "bridge is so eminently respectable." Then said the lady with that delicious drawl, "Don't you know, the English simply dote on bridge—but sh! Some play the races and some even bet on bacarat. So if they can do that, surely we would not be blamed for playing a little keno, especially when the odds are so high—just think, dollars for dimes! Oh! I don't know but what I'll go and take a look at it anyhow."

Then spoke up "Airy Fairy Lilian." "Well, I'm just going, and will take about $2 with me, for the cards are 10 cents per roll and with that I can make 20 rolls, and see what a lot of money I stand to win. Let's see, 20 rolls at, say, $10 a roll, is $200. Now what do you think of that?" Her enthusiasm was "mighty ketchin'" and in a chorus they all cried: "We love our keno, but oh, you keno!" "The Rambler."

BABY MILLER MAKES A HIT AT THE BUTLER

Baby Miller, who appeared last evening as a special attraction, at the Butler theater, was greeted by large crowds at each performance. She is an exceptionally clever little miss and her dancing and singing were of the highest order. Mr. Goodfriend is to be congratulated upon securing her services. She will appear every night this week in a new song and dance act.

The pictures for today are as follows: "Rastus in Zululand," depicting a lazy negro's pipe dreams; "Kidd's Treasure," showing how some lads playfully tricked a number of sailors into believing they could find the treasure of the famous Captain Kidd. And last, but not least, a beautiful Vitagraph drama entitled "Love's Awakening," the story of a circus performer who becomes injured in an accident and finally marries the doctor who has taken such good care of her. The regular performances will be given this evening, together with the matinee this afternoon.

MAYFLOWER HELD UP AND SETTLEMENT IS NOW DELAYED

The Rhyolite Herald of June 11 says: Another hitch in Mayflower affairs has taken place through the duplicity of A. C. Elsen, whose name has crept into these columns numerous times in connection with Mayflower manipulations.

Attorney William F. Humphreys, representing Colonel Charles T. Dunbar, president of the Mayflower company, came to Nevada this week expecting to make a final settlement with Mr. Elsen's lawyer, W. H. Bryant, at Goldfield, whereby the way would be paved for the liquidation of the company's obligations and the resumption of work at the mine.

Before sailing for Europe a short time ago, Mr. Elsen agreed to certain things, it is said, but when Mr. Humphreys and Mr. Bryant got together, they found that each had different plans and specifications for settlement, and accordingly the settlement was declared off. It is asserted that Mr. Elsen's letter of instructions to Mr. Bryant says one thing, while the understanding between Mr. Elsen and Mr. Dunbar was quite another thing. At any rate, Mr. Humphreys found it impossible to proceed, and negotiations were declared off until Mr. Elsen can be reached by cable.

This is not the first time that Mr. Elsen has held up Mayflower progress but it is evident that Mr. Humphreys proposes to bring the globe trotter to time quite soon or go into the courts and thresh out the differences to a finish.

Colonel Dunbar stands ready to advance $40,000 to settle up Mayflower and put it upon its feet, if Mr. Elsen will let him do it. Meanwhile operations at the mine will not be resumed, and Mayflower is still "up in the air."

Messrs. W. F. Humphreys and A. J. Welsh came in from Rhyolite Wednesday and a meeting of Mayflower officials was held at the company's offices in the Overbury building. The following new directors were chosen:

Thomas S. Robinson, A. J. Welsh and A. C. Hampton, of San Francisco, and B. A. Peckham of San Mateo, Cal. C. E. Ryan of Rhyolite tendered his resignation as director, retaining the office of secretary. Julius Lemle and L. P. Kimball, directors, came from Beaty to attend the meeting.
